"You are never too old to set another goal or to dream a new dream."
- Malala Yousafzai

During pandemic, we learnt something new each day. The change from offline to online was traumatic and now as Covid is waning off moving from Online to Offline is always welcome. Life is finally returning to normal. Students are happy as they are getting to mingle with their friends and meet teachers. They have realized that life is unpredictable and they have to be prepared to take each day as it comes. We have won the battle with Covid, but we must not let our guards down as prevention is better than cure.

As students gear up for the forthcoming final exams teachers are ensuring that students are well prepared to take up their exams. For education will be their strength as they step in to face the real time challenges.

All the best dear students.

No Pain No Gain

The proverb 'no pain no gain' indicates that one must work hard or put extra effort to achieve the goals. One has to go through many difficulties or challenges to reach a respected and good position. There is always a connection between hard work and success. Everything that we want to achieve in life is connected to the effort that we put in that direction.

There are numerous instances from our daily lives that show the effect of hard work and repeated efforts in achieving success.

When it comes to our exams, only if we work hard, we can score well. A student can never become a scholar until and unless he gives his best efforts and concentration in his studies. A sportsperson or a performer doesn't become famous immediately. It takes him or her years of practice and training to become a successful person. In today's world, one has to go through the hard moments of competition and face failures at times. But those who have the strength and stamina to make it to the finish line in spite of all pains and hurts become a winner.

There is no shortcut to success. "God helps those who help themselves. If a man has a strong will to do something and does not sit idle but instead strives for it, he will surely get success. There can be no gain without pain." We should be involved in our efforts with dedication, honesty, and patience in order to see the gain at the end despite the pains it gives.
